It was just 240 o'clock when Policeman Neison Downey, of the Quincy street station, saw smoke issuing from the hallway of the building. The ground floor was occupied by Joseph Wenzler, as as joon-keeper, who had closed his store an hour before and nad gone home.

There was nobody moving about the premises at the time, and Policeman Forrest rushed upstairs, rapping on the doors and crying "Fire!" as he went.

The second floor was occupied by the family of Anthony Rempe, the third John McDonald and John Pavart.

The policeman left the house and ran to the nearest fire alarm, and sent a cail for firemen, in the mean time the treamts swarmed into the hailway, and in the frightened tenants made their ray to the rear of the building, and in a few moments the narrow structure was crowded with a struggling mass of humanity. Women shrieked with fear, and one of them wanted to jump to the ground. She was restrained, and everybody came down the fire-escape to the first floor, where they stepped out upon an extension, and were assisted to the ground. SITUATION FOR MR. JORDAN.

And Many More Contributions for the Needy Family.

Through the timely efforts of "The Evening World" the nome of John Jor-dan, at 20 Knickerbocker avenue, Williamsburg, has undergone a wonderful change. In place of starvation, which less then one week ago stared the whole family, consisting of father, mother and seven children, in the face, there is now abundance of the comforts of life. Contributions continue to come into "The Evening Woriu" office for the family, and aiready nearly $100 has been received, most of which has been delivered to Mrs. Jordan. Words cannot convey the intense feeling of gratitude this family feel towards the public, and contributors, however small, will have to see the poor woman personally to understand the nobility of their action and receive her silent but touching thanks.

Food, clothing, fuel and innumerable little delicalies for the sick ones have been received. As each gift came in the tears of gratitude that trickled down the poor woman's face spoke louder than words.

An "Evening World" reporter delivered a large bundle of clothing and $2.50 to the family last night. The family was just having their dinner, and for the first time in weeks it was a most bountful one. There still remain some contributions, which will be delivered to-day. This does not include nearly as many more that were sent directly to the house. Among those why called and offerred a saigntance was W. Hartman the server in the family last night. Market Police Court, to-day on the charge of being badger thieves.
They are charged with fleecing Daniel Gleason, of 135 West Twenty-eighth street, who has charge of the waiters
in Strandley's restaurant, Broadway, between Twenty-ninth street and Thirtieth street, out of $40.

He says he met Ida Bennett late Wednesday night in West Twentyeighth street, and, after drinking with her in a neighboring saloon, he accompanied her home.

He says she took the money from his trousers, and that later William Bennett entered the flat and claimed that the woman was his wife. Gleason was thrown out of the Bennett apartments and left the house at once. He soon missed his money and reported the matter to the police yesterday.
When Detective Dugan went to the flat yesterday to arrest the woman, Bennett drew a knife and attacked the policeman. Dugan held Bennett at bay with his revolver while Gleason, who was with the officer, ran out for help.
By the time Policeman Lawless had been notified and reached the scene Dugan and Bennett were engaged in a desperate struggle at the top of the landing at the entrance to the latter's flat.

Tweed lived high and let others live. His more scientific successors are seish rulers. They have reversed a well-known saying. They take and never give.

A legitimate subject of inquiry, Mr. Townsend said, would be the sources of wealth of Tammany leaders—whether, for instance, Mayor Gilroy and Croker are not interested in asphalt companies who have the city asphalt pavement contracts.

Mr. Townsend added some new and familiar subject. He went into details and named individuals.
